MACBETH-EVANS COMPANY MUST PRESENT ORDINANCE

Solons Tacitly Agree, However, They May Proceed With Work

COUNCIL HARD AT WORK

Street Matters Occupy Considerable Attention at Adjourned Meeting

A communication from the Macbeth-Evans Company, asking that they be granted the privilege of installing railroad tracks at Eighth street, to join with a proposed addition they expect to start work on soon, was received by council Tuesday night at its regular meeting. Council tacitly agreed to allow the privilege, but instructed the Glass Company to enter an ordinance as soon as possible. It is the desire to erect conveyors to the new addition, which will be across the street from the present plant, and these will be placed either overhead or under ground.

President J. K. Hein was in the chair and members of council present were Dr. A. O. Davis, C. O. Frye, W. R. Gaut and Oscar C. Linn. C. Schmeiler was absent.

John Hayes was present and asked council to establish the grade on Shady avenue, near Sixth street, so he could lay his sidewalk. He was instructed to secure a petition, signed by a number of property holders.

W. T. Noss was present asking council to care for surface water between Second and Third street on the hill, stating property of his was being damaged.

Councilman Linn recommended that a railing be placed on Sixth street on the hill leading to Shady avenue. His recommendation was adopted.

Borough Clerk Ira L. Nickeson was instructed to procure special books in which to keep data of work to be done by councilmanic committees.

Councilman Gaut reported that he had seen to the matter of getting the house on Meadow avenue arranged for a polling place.

The fire, water and light committee was instructed to attend to the matter of having necessary painting done about the [illegible] building. Adjournment was taken to meet, June 26th.

EXCAVATING HINDERED BY HARD LIMESTONE

Will Require Haste to Have New School Building in Shape for Next Term

Excavation started some weeks ago by the Taggart Lumber company of Fayette City, which has the contract for building the North Charleroi school, is being continued at the school site, being hindered somewhat by limestone, through which it is necessary to dig. It will probobly be three weeks before the excavating can be finished when the active building work will begin. Considerable haste will be required in getting the new building ready for occupancy by the beginning of the next school term.

Commissioners Paid No Heed

When Notified of Condition of Bridge--Grand Jury Takes up Matter

Before adjourning Tuesday the grand jury approved the building of the Maple Crek bridge. This structure will be of concrete and will be constructed at an estimated cost of $10,751.05. Half of the cost of this bridge will be borne by the Pittsburg Railways company. The jurymen after reciving the thanks of the court were dismissed.

The bridge is the one at the southern end of town. Council made an effort to have the county commissioners attend to the matter and Borough Clerk Ira L. Nickeson wrote several letters to them. They made no responses, although the bridge has been in bad condition all the while.

GRAND JUROR RETURNS

Hon. Edward Callaghan of Charleroi one of the grand jurors, returned home this morning after completing the labors of what will figure in history as one of the most remarkable grand juries ever assembled in Washington county. Their crowning act was the selection of the original site for the rebuilding of the Brownsville bridge. Over 75 witnesses appeared and in their deliberation in the grand jury room at Washington it is said that the eloquence in favor of selecting the old site was only equaled once before, and that was at the adoption of the Federal constitution in 1787.

FORMER CHARLEROI CITIZEN DIES AT HIS HOME IN OKLAHOMA

John Shanton, Noted in Western Pennsylvania, Was Preparing to Return to Monongahela Valley

A pioneer of the Monongahela valley and a noted figure throughout Western Pennsylvania, John Shanton, aged about 83 years, died Tuesday evening at Oklahoma City, Okla., where he has been living since last fall. A telegram announcing Mr. Shanton's death was received this morning by I. R. Blythe, of Charleroi. The body will be brought home on Friday morning, and the funeral held here. Interment will be in Frye's cemetery, near Charleroi.

Mr. Shanton spent his entire life along the Mononghaela valley. During the early years of his life he lived on a farm near the present site of Donora, and was in the stock raising and farming business. With others long since dead, he often drove stock to markets in eastern cities. Trips were often taken to Philadelphia where cattle was disposed of. In that early period there was practically no means of efficient transportation from the western part of Pennsylvania to cities in the east, and when stock dealers of this section wished to dispose of their stock it was necessary to drive them the whole distance.

As the community progressed, Mr. Shanton progressed with it. He saw the starting of the majority of the towns of the Monongahela and the rapid development of the entire valley. He witnessed the growth of Pittsburg as a manufacturing center. As the towns sprung up and assumed definite proportions, his business of stock raising was crowded out and given up.

When Charleroi was in its infancy he came here, and with Frank Frye entered the hardware business. Continuing in this for some time, he finally sold out to Mr. Frye, who went to Belle Vernon. Since that time Mr. Shanton has lived more or less a retired life, giving his attention to real estate matters largely. Last fall he went to Oklahoma, taking his wife. He had in the past experienced some heart trouble, and that with complications incident to old age brought about his death. At the time he was preparing to return to Charleroi, being homesick to see his old home.

Mr. Shanton was a member of the old Redstone Association, an "Old School" Baptist Denomination. During his membership with this famous Western Pennsylvania organization, he was a trustee, and holds record books and minutes of the association from the time of its formation a few years previous to the Revolutionary War until recent date. In this book is given a brief history of the formation of the Christian church or Campbellites church by Thomas and Alexander Campbell and others. On the pages of the minute books, as members both the Campbell's names are transcribed. Mr. Shanton has been offered big sums for these historical books, but was loath to part with them. The name of Sidney Rigdon, the purported author of the Mormon Bible, also appears in the record book of the Redstone Association, of which he was at one time a member. In his private life Mr.Shanton ranked as one of the foremost citizens of this part of the valley. He was highly respected and admired. His wife is the only surviving member of his family. One nephew, John Hines, lives in Charleroi.

MRS HENRY DIES AT BELLE VERNON

Aged Woman Succumbs to Complications Developing From Fracture

Mrs. Martha Barrett Henry, aged80 years, widow of the late John S. Henry, died at her home corner of Short and Henry streets, Belle Vernon, at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday evening, from complications arising from a fractured hip received two weeks ago. She leaves three sons, Isaac F. and Henry V. of Belle Vernon and John S. Jr., of Fremont, Ohio, also three daughters, Mrs. A. G. VanHook of Monongahela, Mrs. John H. Bowers of Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, and Miss Belle at home. The funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the late home. Interment will be in the Belle Vernon cemetery.

Mrs, Henry spent the greater part of her life in this vicinity, and was one of the best known residents of Belle Vernon.

BEGIN WORK OF PAINTING BRIDGE

For the first time since it was erected in 1907, the Monessen-Chaleroi bridge is oeing painted. The work is being done by a Pittsburg contractor, who recently begin the work. It will be possibly five or six weeks before it is completed.

Borough May Be Dissolved.

After a municipal existence of 88 years it is now seriously proposed that West Middletown shall surrender its charter as a borough. The advocates of the measure contend that local government would be cheape r and taxes much less if the charter of West Middletown borough is annulled and all the property therein attached to Hopewell township.

SCHOOL BOARD SETS TAX LEVY

Millage for Coming Year to be the Same as it Was Last

At a meeting of the school board Tuesday afternoon the millage for the coming year was set at 15 mills. This is the same as last year, when 10 mills were apportioned for school purposes and five for building. A division may be made later of the 15 mills as it was set Monday. The school board spent considerable time discussing the new school code. It contains many new provisions.

Telephone Concern Ready to Nail Telephones on First Board if Necessary

When it comes to getting new business the Bell Telephone company is not going to let any grass grow under its feet in Charleroi or anywhere else. By a new plan of working, towns are being canvassed thoroughly and plotted out by lots. In Charleroi a borough map will be secured. Not only lots with houses on them are to be canvassed but also vacant lots. If anybody starts putting up a house, the Bell company is going to be on the job when the dirt is being hauled out. If the man erecting the house wants a telephone he will get it as soon as a board can be found about the premises on which to tack it.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ORDERED TO GET MONEY

Dudley Fine Must be Collected Within Short Term

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS

Cash Ready, Yet County Never Got a Cent--Remarkable Case

By a peremptory mandamus issued late Tuesday afternoon by the Washington county court, at Washington John W. Berry, Thomas Hill and W. J. Smith, the county sommissioners, are ordered to at once collect and turn into the county treasury the $1,000 fine and some $500 costs due the county in the case of E. G. Dudley, the Washington druggists convicted at the August term of 1910 of gross violations of the liquor laws. The order which was served on the county commissioners shortly before closing time for the day reads in part as follows:

"Now therefore we command you that you forthwith superintend the collection of the fine and costs imposed upon E. G. Dudley * * * * requiring said E. G. Dudley to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs of prosecution * * * and that you compel payment of the same into the county treasury as you are required by law to do and hereof fail not at your peril."

The action to collect this $1,500 or more long overdue, came to a head Tuesday when District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson in the name of the commonwealth went before the court and asked for a writ of peremptory mandamus upon the county commissioners to compel them to collect the fine and costs as the law says they shall do. Although weeks have passed the county commissioners have neglected or refused to go after the money which it has been repeatedly stated was ready for them in the hands of the local attorney. Just what were the reasons for the delay in collecting money lawfully due the county has never been made public although there have been all manner of rumors.

June 26, is the date on which the writ of mandamus is returnable and which is the time limit for the three men in charge of the county business to get in the Dudley cash.

Coal Shipments Falling Short

Average Daily is Under 400,000 Bushels--Good Stage in Monongahela

Coal shipments are getting lower and lower from the upper pools, for various reasons. With a good shipping stage in the Monongahela river of about 10 feet, there is not enough water in the Ohio, which does not have the improved lock and dam system to maintain a good stage at all periods, to allow scarcely any coal to be removed to southern points. The average shipment recorded through Lock No 4 since the first of June would be less than 400,000 bushels a day. A fair daily shipment would be 600,000 bushels. The smallest shipment was made on June 5, of 173,000 bushels, and the largest on June 1, of 446,000 bushels.

CHARLEROI TOSSERS VICTORS AT ROSCOE

Roscoe Aggregation Beaten in Extra Inning Affair There Tuesday

The Charleroi ball team at Roscoe Tuesday put the cleaner on the Roscoe aggregation by the score of 3 to2. It required an extra inning to decide the affair, but it was happily decided to the visitors. Charleroi scored two runs in their part of the extra session and the best Roscoe could do was to pull one. The game was fast from start to finish. Features were the excellent pitching of "Mutts" Deitz, for Charltroi and Gray for Roscoe. The Charleroi team was composed of the following players: Guder catcher, Deitz pitcher, Kuhn short, McGuire first, F. Buchanan second, Newton third, Heffran left, S. Buchanan middle, J. Buchanan right. This is the third straight victory for the locals. No defeat has been sustained thus far.

CAUSES TO CONSIDER.

Pittsburg, alarmed over the growing tendency of industrial expansion to give that city the go-by, has inaugurated a campaign to induce small industries to locate there. The figures of the last census show that Pittsburg has lost heavily in that respect, and that many other sections are beating the Smoky City badly in industrial growth and expansion. Because Pitsburg has long been the hub of the industrial universe, this loss is keenly felt, and efforts are being made to try to regain the losses.

First of all, Pittsburg will have to recognize the causes of her industrial decline and seek to remedy them. There are three primary causes why small industries avoid Pittsburg. These are: First, the high cost of land; second, the high cost of labor, and third, the high cost of building material and living. These are obstacles which debar not only new industries, but the expansion of the ones already there and which have made Pittsburg great. It was these features that caused big industrial concerns to establish the suburban towns in the Pittsburg district, and now these towns are suffering from the lack of expansion and industrial growth that has overtaken Pittsburg. Pittsburg, as well as Charleroi, might as well recognize first as last that it stands small chance of getting small industries to locate here so long as they can go where it requires a smaller investment for equipment and where labor and living are cheaper. In Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois, are scores of good live towns located in the prairies where they can expand indefinitely, and which have first-class railroad facilities. The most of them are not so far removed from sources of fuel supply as to be a serious drawback, and this is the competition which Pittsburg, Charleroi and every other town in the Pittsburg disrict is up against. The proper thing to do is to recognize this situation as it exists and devise ways and means to overcome it, if it can be done. The cost of manufacturing and doing business is greater in the Pittsburg district than in many other sections, and this is most serious competition.

PECULIAR CONDUCT.

Washington county residents are treated to the extraordinary spectacle of the court having to compel the county commissioners to do their duty to the people by collecting a fine which had been imposed on a notorious criminal, but which was being held up for the presumable purpose of permitting the latter to ultimately evade payment. The delay in collecting this fine and costs, even though the principal was serving a jail sentence, was continued until a scandal was imminent and the court very properly issued a peremptory mandamus to compel the commissioners to collect the fine and costs and turn the amount over to the county treasurer where it belongs.

Just why the county commissioners sought to favor this particular criminal is not known. It is charged that political reasons played a part. It is also stated that an appeal will be made to the board of pardons in the hope that a part of the sentence might be set aside by which the culprit would not be obliged to pay the pecuniary penalty imposed by the court. From all accounts the culprit was a gross offender, and deserved all the penalty that was inflicted. The fact that he appealed his case to both the Superior and Supreme Courts and lost out, indictates that there was no miscarriage of justice, and for the commissioners to seek to favor him makes their conduct all the more reprehensible. The fine imposed by the court is money belonging to the county, and it was the duty of the commissioners to collect it promptly and let the convicted one fight his own battles.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The recent death of Mrs. Carrie Nation, the world-wide temperance advocate of hatchet fame, recalls the visit of that distinguished apostle to Charleroi on two different occasions, when she lectured at Eldora Park. Those who heard her remember her as a pleasant looking but determined woman of middle age, imbued with the fire of a zealot, but nevertheless admired for her apparent sincerity of purpose. At her last lecture here she bitterly arraigned Theodore Roosevelt, then President as the head of the dominant political party which as she declared, sanctioned the saloon. She scored the President for his fondness for hunting and killing things, and declared "he ought to have been a butcher."

While in Charleroi she had occasion to visit the postoffice, and while there a prominent local business man who is somewhat addicted to the cigarette habit, came in. Mrs. Carrie who was addressing a letter at the public dessk, sniffed the burning coffin nail, and glared around her. Spying the source she marched up to the man snatched the cigarette from his lips and dashed it to the floor.

"You dirty loafer," she exclaimed, "don't you know any better than to smoke such nasty things in the presence of ladies?"

The she blistered the citizen with a tongue lashing, and before the latter could recover from his surprise, Mrs Carrie sailed out of the office and disappeared.

The latest result of the campaign waged by the Pennsylvania Railroad for increasing the crops along its lines by promoting scientific farming, is an organization recently formed at Price, Maryland, called the "Progressive Farmers' Club."

"The object of this club," says its founder in a letter to the company's agent who supplied him with the literature which inspired it, "is to study the farming industries, improve farm land, and increase the crops. We have about 35 members and expect to reach the hundred mark in the near future. Some good results have already been attained and there is a great deal of enthusiasm."

"I really think it will be the means of a great improvement in farm land in this section of the State and will also teach the farmers to have their crops in better shape before putting them on the market.'

"There is a general working up Recently ground was broken for a creamery and the machinery is already here. Conditions are such that it will not run on a very large scale at first, but we believe it will soon make a good showing. This is one of the several industries we propose to establish here."

HAS THROWN HIS CRUTCHES AWAY

Hussey Binns Shovel Plant Employee Receives Congratulations From Friends—Mr. Wm. A. Bailey, Laid Up With Rheumatism Since Last March, Walks Without Crutches Now.

Suffering agonizing pains for months, laid up in bed, hobbling about with crutches, and then in a few short hours after receiving treatment, discards the crutches and walks in town and home again every day, thus showing the cure is not merely temporary relief from the weeks of torturing pains, but is permanent—this is the experience of Mr. Wm. A. Bailey who lives in Twilight borough, and who up to the time of his attack last March was employed at the shovel works. Mr. Bailey, as all his friends and neighbors know, was taken with a severe attack of Rheumatism last March, which laid him up in bed and which has since obliged him to resort to crutches in order to get around at all; hearing of the Quaker Doctor's success here with others suffering in a like manner and scarcely with any hope of relief, he called at the Quaker Doctor's office for examination. After making an exhaustive diagnosis of all the symptoms and history of the case, the doctor told him plainly he could cure him and would relieve him at once. After the doctor had worked on him, massaging and rubbing his Quaker Oil thoroughly for about twenty minutes, the first few minutes of which was apparently somewhat severe, to his surprise he was able to use his limbs once more, and the pain was gone. Promising the Quaker Doctor he would follow his directions he went home taking with him some of the Quaker Doctor's herb medicine. Every day since then he has called at the Doctor's office walking in town without any trouble and is now a living, breathing testimonial of the Quaker skill in treating chronic cases and relieving suffering.

The Quaker Doctor says he wishes everyone to know that through the lectures and shows will cease after this week, he will keep his office at the present location on McKean avenue, opposite the Hotel Arthur, but those who wish to take advantage of the cards enabling those who have them to call for the consultation and advice must call before that time as this offer will cease with the public sale of the Quaker remedies, which is now going on nightly at McKean avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets.

In cures like the above the Quaker Doctor says there is nothing pertaining to the miraculous in it, but it is simply the right medicine properly applied. Certainly no one has come here and in such a short time made as many friends and apparently done as much for the sick as this Quaker Doctor.

At his platform tonight his views taken of the Passion Play at Oberammergau by the actual actors that gave the play will be the feature. Next Saturday night the little girls nail driving match and a sketch in which one of the Misses Harrison will wear the Harem Skirt which she wore in New York vaudeville, will be featured, while on next Monday the last night of the shows, a ladies' wood sawing match for a cash prize of $2.00 will start the performance.

Both Hoped.

"Well, may I hope, then, dearest, that at some time I may have the superlative happiness of making you my wife?"

"Yes; I hope so, I am sure," she replied. "I am tired of suing fellows for breach of promise."

Home Treatment for Tuberculosis

Many people have cured themselves of Tuberculosis by a very simple, inexpensive home method—fresh air, careful diet and Eckman's Alterative.

This Alterative is not a new medicine. It has been conquering tuberculosis for several years, cures resulting after other methods had failed.

Think what this means. No specialist's fees; no sanatorium charges; no traveling expenses.

Eckman's Alterative has cured many people at home, where their dear ones encourage them and give them that tender care which money cannot buy.

After you have thoroughly investigated our affidavits and testimonials—feeling sure in your own mind that if Eckman's Alterative has cured so many others, it surely must help you—start taking the Alterative. Your improvement should be gradual, but certain.

If you have been faithful to Eckman's Alterative, you will be amazed at your improvement. A statement from one who knows follows:—

220 So. 4th St., Colwyn, (Darby) Pa.

Gentlemen: "For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse; I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital; they also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later, by an examination of sputum, as Tuberculosis Bacilli was found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief; night sweats ceased; pain in the breast relieved; cough became loose and easy; fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I strongly recommend it."

Fleeced the Queen.

When George IV. was crowned it was feared that the discarded Queen Caroline might appear and create a scene at Westminster abbey during the ceremony. A gentleman of the name of Chutneigh offered to go into the anteroom where Caroline was waiting and keep her engaged until the conclusion of the ceremony. That was a time when nearly everybody gambled, and the discarded queen was no exception to the rule. After a few casual remarks about the weather Chutneigh took three cards from his pocket and invited Caroline to "spot the lady." Time and again she backed her judgment with money and each time lost. Then she played higher stakes in the hope of retrieving her ill fortune. Her last guinea had been taken in by Chutneigh before she remembered her intention to be at the coronation. But it was too late. The ceremony was over, and the new king, "the greatest blackguard in all Europe," was on his way to the palace. To Mr. Chutneigh, who thus holds the credit of introducing the three card trick into England, a pension was granted.

A Famous Paris Sign.

Paris is a city of curious signboards, one of the most remarkable ones representing a tobacconist's sign at 55 Rue du Chateau-d'Eau, which has been here ever since 1870. It is riddled with holes made by the bullets of the Prussians, and the occupant of the shop states that so far as he is aware it is the only public relic of the Franco-Prussian war in evidence in the streets of Paris today.

"My sign," he added, "brings me plenty of customers. You have no idea, monsieur, of the number of English and American tourists who pass this way and drop into my place for a cigar or a box of matches merely in order to have a word with me about my bullet riddled enseigne. I wouldn't part with it for anything."—Wide World Magazine.

Eddystone Lighthouse.

The Eddystone lighthouse, fourteen miles off Plymouth, England, and exposed to the full fury of the southwestern seas, was built by Winstanley in four seasons. Begun in 1696 and finished in 1700, it was destroyed in the dreadful storm of 1703. The second structure was completed in 1709 and destroyed in 1755, after it had faced the wind and the waves for something over forty-six years. The third tower, finished in 1759 and condemned in 1878, was followed by the present wonderful structure, which since 1882 has been defying the elements while it flashed out over the terrible waters its saving light. Since the brave Winstanley built the first Eddystone lighthouse similar safeguards have sprung up like magic sentinels along all the coasts of all the oceans, and those who sail upon the great deeps of the earth are forewarned and forearmed against the dangers which threaten them.—New York American.

So Gentle and Nice.

"You have no idea," said Ethel, "how my poor head hurts me."

"Well," said her friend, "why don't you take your hair off and rest it?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Curious Rule.

The following curious rule appears under paragraph 68 of the municipal regulations governing burials at Giessen, Hesse: "Interments are only permitted after death has taken place. In all other cases a certificate signed by the mayor is required."

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

TOMBS OF SAND.

Cape Cod's Treacherous Shoals and the Prey They Grip.

Secrets of the sands of Cape Cod are constantly being disclosed by the sea. In the many storm tides that flood the desolate beaches the hulks of stanch ships lost along the coast on the half hundred miles of beaches between Monomoy at Chatham and Wood End at Provincetown are frequently exhumed from tombs of sand.

Sometimes a wreck appears that has been buried a century or more, as in the case a few years ago of the bones of the British frigate Somerset, whose timbers of oak were disclosed to view back of Provincetown, near the life saving station in Dead Men's Hollow. The Somerset was lost on Peaked Hill bars Nov. 2 or 3, 1778.

Once a vessel is gripped by the sands the process of entombing her goes on with great rapidity, the craft appearing to sink steadily in the yielding beach. All around the doomed vessel the sand piles up in great drifts, like snow. Every crevice of the hull is quickly filled. The sand rises in a solid barrier outside it and flows about it as the tides flood the shelving beaches. Finally it sweeps over the wreck, and the process of entombing goes on until the entombed craft is covered many feet deep.—Boston Globe.

SURE TO BE MISSED.

A Famous Cook's Lament on the Death of His Royal Master.

The most successful book that was published by William Harrison Ainsworth during his first year of business, says Mr. S. M. Ellis in his biography of the English author and publisher, was a cookbook. It was "The French Cook," by Louis Eustache Ude, "the Gil Blas of the kitchen."

This unique study of the culinary art brought in a handsome sum to the astute young publisher who had purchased the copyright, and the book was in the hands of every gourmet in London.

Ude had been chef of Louis XVI., of Mme. Letizia Bonaparte and then of the Earl of Sefton, at a salary of 300 guineas a year. At another time he presided over the culinary department of the Crockfords, but his favorite master was Frederick, duke of York. When the royal gormand died his bereaved chef pathetically ejaculated:

"Ah, mon pauvre duc, how much you will miss me, wherever you are gone to!"

Odd Word Survivals.

Far away back in the days when the English language was in its infancy there were poets who wrote of the blossoms on the trees in the spring. They didn't write "blossom," however, but used the word "blow" and made it rhyme with snow and flow. When they wished to sing of the beautiful mass of apple or hawthorn flowers they called it the "blowth." This word is found in the dictionaries, which assert that it is obselete, but it is very much alive in Rockingham county, N. H., and York county, Me. The orchardist thereabout speaks of a "full blowth" or "light blowth" on his trees in May and predicts a good or poor "set" of the fruit in consequence.

"Orts" are supposed to be refuse of some kind, but in the valley where the Piscataqua river mingles with the sea "orts" is the name for "swill."—Exchange.

Tricking the Bobby.

A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham. Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight, and just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon collared the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop. Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender.

"But," said the assistant as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham. He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."—London Answers.

Weatherwise Birds and Fish.

The seagull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable. Of all weatherwise fish the dolphin is the most remarkable. During a fierce gale or a storm at sea the mariner knows that the end of it is near if he can see a dolphin or a number of that fish sporting on the high sea waves.

Considerate Revolutionists.

The wildest and most ferocious revolutionaries I have known have often been in private life merciful, tender, unselfish, considerate.—T. P. O'Connor in London T. P.'s Weekly.

Warned.

He—Darling, I don't know what to say to your father. She—Just say, "Mr. Munn, I wish to marry your daughter," then dodge.

Reassured.

"Where am I?" the invalid exclaimed, waking from the long delirium of fever and feeling the comfort that loving hands had supplied. "Where am I—in heaven?"

"No, dear," cooed his wife; "I am still with you."—Toledo Blade.

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward. It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek. Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the frog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in patches, and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible.—New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age. Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market. In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting. If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven; otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests. Tea likewise deteriorates with age. It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing. The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it.—New York World.

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children. Pure sugar is good for grown people. Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser. What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants. The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets.—Christian Herald.

The Age of Linen.

It is highly probable that the manufacture of linens is of greater antiquity than that of silk. Archaeologists generally admit that the mummy cloth of the most ancient dynasties was a variety of finest linen. The Egyptian and Jewish priests wore it at all their ceremonies. We find mention of fine linens all through the Old and New Testaments. When the queen of Sheba visited Solomon she was habited in linen. In Revelation the angels are clothed in "pure and white linen." Genesis tells us that Pharaoh arrayed Joseph in vestures of fine linen. Silk is mentioned in the Bible only four times.

The Mystic Seven.

A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home.

"Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?"

"I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."—Philadelphia Times.

Money Panic.

"What was the worst money panic you ever saw?" asked one financier of another.

"The worst money panic I ever saw," was the reply, "was when a fifty cent piece rolled under the seat of a street car and seven different women claimed it."—Exchange.

Tyranny.

There are few minds to which tyranny is not delightful. Power is nothing but as it is felt, and the delight of superiority is proportionate to the resistance overcome.—Johnson.

Every production of genius must be the production of enthusiasm.—Disraeli.

BAPTISTS BEAT THE METHODISTS

Bottom Contenders Stick to Their Position Through Drubbing

SEVEN HITS TO FIVE

Erring in attempts to do just the right thing at the right time, together with their opponent's timely hitting and good base running, lost the game last night to the Methodists, bottom contenders for the pennant race. The Baptists thus captured another interesting game, by the score of 4 to 3.

It looked very much Methodist, thank you, until the fourth inning. They captured two scores in the second inning, when Heaton and Binns completed the circuit. The former singled stole second and went third on a fielder's choice to score on an error. Binns was safe on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on an error.

The Baptists scored one in the same inning, when Deitz got a walk, stole second, got third on an error and scored on a hit. On a three base hit and a single the Methodists scored in the fourth. The Baptists again scored , this time twice, H. Mason and Morris bringing in the runs. Two hits a couple of errors, a hit by pitcher, a stolen base and a passed ball were reasons.

In the sixth session H. Mason singled, stole second and completed the distance on a wild throw. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

Snyder, catcher for the Methodists was forced to get out of the game in the fourth, when he had a nail ripped from his finger. Dillon came from right field to substitute and Manager George Barnett went in right.

* * *

George Barnett won the plaudits of the crowd when he went to bat for the first time. Then to demonstrate that he had a right to all this popularity, he hit out a beautiful single. Afterwards, George made a grand stand catch in right that astounded the populace.

* * *

The Baptists had a new pitcher, Adams, in form. He is wee, but pitches good ball. Besides William got one of the nicest hits of the game.

* * *

Lambert Heaton landed on the ball for two daisy singles.

* * *

"Speedy" McKean seems to be about the chief bag pilferer in the league. And "Speedy" is a banker.

Both the Methodists and Baptists had rather patched up teams.

Tonight there promises to be a good struggle, when the First Presbyterians and Baptists meet.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaring mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

Very Sensitive.

"I don't know what I am going to do with that kid of mine. He's always getting into fights. I jerked him up for it the other day. 'What do you mean by fighting on the public streets like this?' I asked.

"'Well,' he said, 'Jimmy Montgomery said you were my father.'

"'Well, ain't I your father?'

"'I s'pose you are, but a feller don't want it thrown up to him right in front of a crowd.'"—Boston Traveler.

GRAND JUROR RETURNS

Their crowning act was the selection of the original site for the rebuilding of the Brownsville bridge. Over 75 witnesses appeared and in their deliberation in the grand jury room at Washington it is said that the eloquence in favor of selecting the old site was only equaled once before, and that was at the adoption of the Federal constitution in 1787.

FORMER CHARLEROI CITIZEN DIES AT HIS HOME IN OKLAHOMA

John Shanton, Noted in Western Pennsylvania, Was Preparing to Return to Monongahela Valley

A pioneer of the Monongahela valley and a noted figure throughout Western Pennsylvania, John Shanton, aged about 83 years, died Tuesday where he has been living since last fall A telegram announcing Mr. Shanton's death was received this morning by I R Blythe, of Charleroi. The body will be brought home on Friday morning, and the funeral held here. Interment will be in Frye's cemetery, near Charleroi

Mr Shanton spent his entire life along the Monongahela valley. During the early years of his life he lived on a farm near the present site of Donora, and was in the stock raising and farming business. With others long since dead, he often drove stock to markets in eastern cities. Trips were often taken to Philadelphia, where cattle was disposed of In that early period there was practically no means of efficient transportation from the western part of Pennsylvania to cities in the east, and when stock dealers of this section wished to dispose of their stock it was necessary to drive them the whole distance.

As the community progressed, Mr. Shanton progressed with it. He saw the starting of the majority of the towns of the Monongahela and the rapid development of the entire valley. He witnessed the growth of Pittsburg as a manufacturing center. As the towns sprung up and assumed definite proportions, his business of stock raising was crowded out, and was given up.

When Charleroi was in its infancy he came here, and with Frank Frye entered the hardware business. Continuing in this for some time, he finally sold out to Mr Frye, who went to Belle Vernon Since that time Mr. Shanton has lived more or less a [illegible] real estate matters largely Last fall he went to Oklahoma, taking his wife He had in the past experienced some heart trouble, and that with complications incident to old age brought about his death At the time he was preparing to return to Charleroi, being homesick to see his old home

Mr. Shanton was a member of the old Redstone Association, an "Old School" Baptist Denomination. During his membership with this famous Western Pennsylvania organization, he was a trustee, and holds record books and minutes of the association from the time of its formation a few years previous to the Revolutionary War until recent date In this book is given a brief history of the forming of the Christian church or Campbellites church by Thomas and Alexander Campbell and others On the pages of the minute books, as members both the Campbell's names are transcribed. Mr. Shanton has been offered big sums for these historical books, but was loath to part with them. The name of Sidney Rigdon, the purported author of the Mormon Bible, also appears in the record book of the Redstone Association, of which he was at one time a member. In his private life Mr. Shanton ranked as one of the foremost citizens of this part of the valley. He was highly respected and admired. His wife is the only surviving member of his family One nephew, John Hines, lives in Charleroi.

Bowers of Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, and Miss Belle at home. The funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the late home. Borough May Be Dissolved.

After a municipal existence of 83 years it is now seriously proposed that West Middletown shall surrender its charter as a borough. The advocates of the measure contend that local government would be cheaper and taxes much less if the charter of West Middletown borough is annulled and all the property therein attached to Hopewell township.

Millage for Coming Year to be the Same as it Was Last

At a meeting of the school board Tuesday afternoon the millage for the coming year was set at 15 mills. The school board spent considerable time discussing the new school code. It contains many new provisions.

Telephone Concern Ready to Nail Telephones on First Board if Necessary

When it comes to getting new business the Bell Telephone company is not going to let any grass grow under its feet in Charleroi or anywhere else. By a new plan of working, towns are being canvassed thoroughly and plotted out by lots. In Charleroi a borough map will be secured. Not only lots with houses on them are to be canvassed but also vacant lots. If anybody starts putting up a house, the Bell company is going to be on the job when the dirt is being hauled out. If the man erecting the house wants a telephone he will get it as soon as a board can be found about the premises on which to tack it.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ORDERED TO GET MONEY

Coal Shipments Falling Short

Average Daily is Under 400,000 Bushels--Good Stage in Monongahela

Coal shipments are getting lower and lower from the upper ports, for various reasons With a good shipping stage in the Monongahela river of about 10 feet, there is not enough water in the Ohio, which does not have the improved lock and dam system to maintain a good stage at all periods, to allow scarcely any coal to be removed to southern points. The average shipment recorded through Lock No 4 since the first of June would be less than 400,000 bushels a day. A fair daily shipment would be 600,000 bushels. The smallest shipment was made on June 5, of 173,000 bushels, and the largest on June 1, of 446,000 bushels.

Dudley Fine Must be Collected Within Short Term

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS

Cash Ready, Yet County Never Got a Cent--Remarkable Case

By a peremptory mandamus issued late Tuesday afternoon by the Washington county court, at Washington John W. Berry, Thomas Hill and W. J. Smith, the county commissioners, are ordered to at once collect and turn into the county treasury the $1,000 fine and some $500 costs due the county in the case of E G Dudley, the Washington druggists convicted at the August term of 1910 of gross violations of the liquor laws. The order which was served on the county commissioners shortly before closing time for the day reads in part as follows:

"Now therefore we command you that you forthwith superintend the collection of the fine and costs imposed upon E. G. Dudley * * * * requiring said E. G. Dudley to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs of prosecution * * * and that you compel payment of the same into the county treasury as you are required by law to do and hereof fail not at your peril."

The action to collect this $1,500 or more long overdue, came to a head Tuesday when District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson in the name of the commonwealth went before the court and asked for a writ of peremptory mandamus upon the county commissioners to compel them to collect the fine and costs as the law says they shall do Although weeks have passed the county commissioners have neglected or refused to go after the money which it has been repeatedly stated was ready for them in the hands of the local attorney. Just what were the reasons for the delay in collecting money lawfully due the county has never been made public although there have been all manner of rumors.

June 26, is the date on which the writ of mandamus is returnable and which is the time limit for the three men in charge of the county business to get in the Dudley cash.

CHARLEROI TOSSERS VICTORS AT ROSCOE

Roscoe Aggregation Beaten in Extra Inning Affair There Tuesday

The Charleroi ball team at Roscoe Tuesday put the cleaner on the Roscoe aggregation by the score of 3 to 2. It required an extra inning to decide the affair, but it was happily decided to the visitors. Charleroi scored two runs in their part of the extra session and the best Roscoe could do was to pull one The game was fast from start to finish. Features were the excellent pitching of "Mutts" Deitz for Charltroi and Gray for Roscoe. The Charleroi team was composed of the following players: Guder catcher, Deitz pitcher, Kuhn short, McGuire first, F. Buchanan second, Newton third, Heffran left, S. Buchanan middle, J Buchanan right. This is the third straight victory for the locals. No defeat has been sustained thus far.

CAUSES TO CONSIDER.

Pittsburg, alarmed over the growing tendency of industrial expansion to give that city the go-by, has inaugurated a campaign to induce small industries to locate there. The figures of the last census show that Pittsburg has lost heavily in that respect, and that many other sections are beating the Smoky City badly in industrial growth and expansion. Because Pitsburg has long been the hub of the industrial universe, this loss is keenly felt, and efforts are being made to try to regain the losses.

First of all, Pittsburg will have to recognize the causes of her industrial decline and seek to remedy them. There are three primary causes why small industries avoid Pittsburg. These are: First, the high cost of land; second, the high cost of labor, and third, the high cost of building material and living. These are obstacles which debar not only new industries, but the expansion of the ones already there and which have made Pittsburg great. It was these features that caused big industrial concerns to establish the suburban towns in the Pittsburg district, and now these towns are suffering from the lack of expansion and industrial growth that has overtaken Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, as well as Charleroi, might as well recognize first as last that it stands small chance of getting small industries to locate here so long as they can go where it requires a smaller investment for equipment and where labor and living are cheaper. In Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois, are scores of good live towns located in the prairies where they can expand indefinitely, and which have first-class railroad facilities. The most of them are not so far removed from sources of fuel supply as to be a serious drawback, and this is the competition which Pittsburg, Charleroi and every other town in the Pittsburg disrict is up against. The proper thing to do is to recognize this situation as it exists and devise ways and means to overcome it, if it can be done. The cost of manufacturing and doing business is greater in the Pittsburg district than in many other sections, and this is most serious competition.

PECULIAR CONDUCT.

Washington county residents are treated to the extraordinary spectacle of the court having to compel the county commissioners to do their duty to the people by collecting a fine which had been imposed on a notorious criminal, but which was being held up for the presumable purpose of permitting the latter to ultimately evade payment. The delay in collecting this fine and costs, even though the principal was serving a jail sentence, was continued until a scandal was imminent and the court very properly issued a peremptory mandamus to compel the commissioners to collect the fine and costs and turn the amount over to the county treasurer where it belongs.

Just why the county commissioners sought to favor this particular criminal is not known. It is charged that political reasons played a part. It is also stated that an appeal will be made to the board of pardons in the hope that a part of the sentence might be set aside by which the culprit would not be obliged to pay the pecuniary penalty imposed by the court. From all accounts the culprit was a gross offender, and deserved all the penalty that was inflicted. The fact that he appealed his case to both the Superior and Supreme Courts and lost out, indictates that there was no miscarriage of justice, and for the commissioners to seek to favor him makes their conduct all the more reprehensible. The fine imposed by the court is money belonging to the county, and it was the duty of the commissioners to collect it promptly and let the convicted one fight his own battles.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The recent death of Mrs. Carrie Nation, the world-wide temperance advocate of hatchet fame, recalls the visit of that distinguished apostle to Charleroi on two different occasions, when she lectured at Eldora Park. Those who heard her remember her as a pleasant looking but determined woman of middle age, imbued with the fire of a zealot, but nevertheless admired for her apparent sincerity of purpose. At her last lecture here she bitterly arraigned Theodore Roosevelt, then President as the head of the dominant political party which as she declared, sanctioned the saloon. She scored the President for his fondness for hunting and killing things, and declared "he ought to have been a butcher."

While in Charleroi she had occasion to visit the postoffice, and while there a prominent local business man who is one of the victims of the cigarette habit, came in. Mrs. Carrie who was addressing a letter at the public dessk, sniffed the burning coffin nail, and glared around her. Spying the source she marched up to the man snatched the cigarette from his lips and dashed it to the floor.

"You dirty loafer," she exclaimed, "don't you know any better than to smoke such nasty things in the presence of ladies?"

The she blistered the citizen with a tongue lashing, and before the latter could recover from his surprise, Mrs Carrie sailed out of the office and disappeared.

The latest result of the campaign waged by the Pennsylvania Railroad for increasing the crops along its lines by promoting scientific farming, is an organization recently formed at Price, Maryland, called the "Progressive Farmers' Club."

"The object of this club," says its founder in a letter to the company's agent who supplied him with the literature which inspired it, "is to study the farming industries, improve farm land, and increase the crops. We have about 35 members and expect to reach the hundred mark in the near future. Some good results have already been attained and there is a great deal of enthusiasm."

"I really think it will be the means of a great improvement in farm land in this section of the State and will also teach the farmers to have their crops in better shape before putting them on the market.'

"There is a general working up. Recently ground was broken for a creamery and the machinery is already here. Conditions are such that it will not run on a very large scale at first, but we believe it will soon make a good showing. This is one of the several industries we propose to establish here."

HAS THROWN HIS CRUTCHES AWAY

Hussey Binns Shovel Plant Employee Receives Congratulations From Friends—Mr. Wm. A. Bailey, Laid Up With Rheumatism Since Last March, Walks Without—Crutches Now.

Suffering agonizing pains for months, laid up in bed, hobbling about with crutches, and then in a few short hours after receiving treatment, discards the crutches and walks in town and home again every day, thus showing the cure is not merely temporary relief from the weeks of torturing pains, but is permanent—this is the experience of Mr. Wm. A. Bailey who lives in Twilight borough, and who up to the time of his attack last March was employed at the shovel works. Mr. Bailey, as all his friends and neighbors know, was taken with a severe attack of Rheumatism last March which laid him up in bed and which has since obliged him to resort to crutches in order to get around at all: hearing of the Quaker Doctor's success here with others suffering in a like manner and scarcely with any hope of relief, he called at the Quaker Doctor's office for examination. After making an exhaustive diagnosis of all the symptoms and history of the case, the doctor told him plainly he could cure him and would relieve him at once. After the doctor had worked on him, massaging and rubbing his Quaker Oil thoroughly for about twenty minutes, the first few minutes of which was apparently somewhat severe, to his surprise he was able to use his limbs once more, and the pain was gone. Promising the Quaker Doctor he would follow his directions he went home taking with him some of the Quaker Doctor's herb medicine. Every day since then he has called at the Doctor's office walking in town without any trouble and is now a living, breathing testimonial of the Quaker skill in treating chronic cases and relieving suffering.

The Quaker Doctor says he wishes everyone to know that through the lectures and shows will cease after this week, he will keep his office at the present location on McKean avenue, opposite the Hotel Arthur, but those who wish to take advantage of the cards enabling those who have them to call for the consultation and advice must call before that time as this offer will cease with the public sale of the Quaker remedies which are now going on nightly at McKean avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets.

In cures like the above the Quaker Doctor says there is nothing pertaining to the miraculous in it, but it is simply the right medicine properly applied. Certainly no one has come here and in such a short time made as many friends and apparently done as much for the sick as this Quaker Doctor.

At his platform tonight his views taken of the Passion Play at Oberammergau by the actual actors that gave the play will be the feature. Next Saturday night the little girls nail driving match and a sketch in which one of the Misses Harrison will wear the Harem Skirt which she wore in New York vaudeville, will be featured, while on next Monday the last night of the shows, a ladies' wood sawing match for a cash prize of $2.00 will start the performance.

Both Hoped.

"Well, may I hope, then, dearest, that at some time I may have the superlative happiness of making you my wife?"

"Yes; I hope so, I am sure," she replied. "I am tired of suing fellows for breach of promise."

Home Treatment for Tuberculosis

Many people have cured themselves of Tuberculosis by a very simple, inexpensive home method—fresh air, careful diet and Eckman's Alterative.

This Alterative is not a new medicine. It has been conquering tuberculosis for several years, cures resulting after other methods had failed.

Think what this means. No specialist's fees; no sanatorium charges; no traveling expenses.

Eckman's Alterative has cured many people at home, where their dear ones encourage them and give them that tender care which money cannot buy.

After you have thoroughly investigated our affidavits and testimonials—feeling sure in your own mind that if Eckman's Alterative has cured so many others, it surely must help you—start taking the Alterative. Your improvement should be gradual, but certain.

If you have been faithful to Eckman's Alterative, you will be amazed at your improvement. A statement from one who knows follows:—

220 So. 4th St., Colwyn, (Darby) Pa.

Gentlemen: "For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse; I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital, they also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later, by an examination of sputum, as Tuberculosis Bacilli was found. I was ordered to a Consumptive Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Within three weeks I had marked relief; night sweats ceased; pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy; fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I strongly recommend it."

Fleeced the Queen.

When George IV was crowned it was feared that the discarded Queen Caroline might appear and create a scene at Westminster abbey during the ceremony A gentleman of the name of Chutneigh offered to go into the anteroom where Caroline was waiting and keep her engaged until the conclusion of the ceremony. That was a time when nearly everybody gambled, and the discarded queen was no exception to the rule. After a few casual remarks about the weather Chutneigh took three cards from his pocket and invited Caroline to "spot the lady" Time and again she backed her judgment with money and each time lost. Then she played higher stakes in the hope of retrieving her ill fortune. Her last guinea had been taken in by Chutneigh before she remembered her intention to be at the coronation. But it was too late The ceremony was over, and the new king, "the greatest blackguard in all Europe,' was on his way to the palace To Mr. Chutneigh, who thus holds the credit of introducing the three card trick into England, a pension was granted.

A Famous Paris Sign.

Paris is a city of curious signboards one of the most remarkable ones representing a tobacconist's sign at 55 Rue du Chateau-d'Eau, which has been here ever since 1870. It is riddled with holes made by the bullets of the Prussians, and the occupant of the shop states that so far as he is aware it is the only public relic of the Franco-Prussian war in evidence in the streets of Paris today

"My sign," he added, "brings me plenty of customers You have no idea, monsieur, of the number of English and American tourists who pass this way and drop into my place for a cigar or a box of matches merely in order to have a word with me about my bullet riddled enseigne. I wouldn't part with it for anything."—Wide World Magazine

The Eddystone lighthouse, fourteen miles off Plymouth, England, and exposed to the full fury of the south western seas, was built by Winstanley in four seasons Begun in 1696 and finished in 1700, it was destroyed in the dreadful storm of 1703 The second structure was completed in 1709 and destroyed in 1755, after it had faced the wind and the waves for something over forty-six years The third tower, finished in 1759 and condemned in 1878, was followed by the present wonderful structure which since 1882 has been defying the elements while it flashed out over the terrible waters its saving light Since the brave Winstanley built the first Eddystone lighthouse similar safeguards have sprung up like magic sentinels along all the coasts of all the oceans and those who sail upon the great deeps of the earth are forewarned and forearmed against the dangers which threaten them.—New York American.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D No. 7, Erie, Pa

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

TOMBS OF SAND.

Cape Cod's Treacherous Shoals and the Prey They Grip.

Secrets of the sands of Cape Cod are constantly being disclosed by the sea. In the many storm tides that flood the desolate beaches the hulks of stanch ships lost along the coast on the half hundred miles of beaches between Monomoy at Chatham and Wood End at Provincetown are frequently exhumed from tombs of sand

Sometimes a wreck appears that has been buried a century or more, as in the case a few years ago of the bones of the British frigate Somerset, whose timbers of oak were disclosed to view back of Provincetown, near the life saving station in Dead Man's Hollow. The Somerset was lost on Peaked Hill bars Nov. 2 or 3, 1778.

Once a vessel is gripped by the sands the process of entombing her goes on with great rapidity, the craft appearing to sink steadily in the yielding beach All around the doomed vessel the sand piles up in great drifts, like snow. Every crevice of the hull is quickly filled. The sand rises in a solid barrier outside it and flows about it as the tides flood the shelving beaches Finally it sweeps over the wreck and the process of entombing goes on until the entombed craft is covered many feet deep.—Boston Globe

SURE TO BE MISSED.

A Famous Cook's Lament on the Death of His Royal Master.

The most successful book that was published by William Harrison Ainsworth during his first year of business, says Mr S M Ellis in his biography of the English author and publisher, was a cookbook. It was "The French Cook," by Louis Eustache Ude, "the Gil Blas of the kitchen"

This unique study of the culinary art brought in a handsome sum to the astute young publisher who had purchased the copyright, and the book was in the hands of every gourmet in London

Ude had been chef of Louis XVI. of Mme Letizia Bonaparte and then of the Earl of Sefton, at a salary of 300 guineas a year At another time he presided over the culinary department of the Crockfords, but his favorite master was Frederick, duke of York. When the royal gormand died his bereaved chef pathetically ejaculated:

"Ah, mon pauvre duc, how much you will miss me, wherever you are gone to!"

Odd Word Survivals.

Far away back in the days when the English language was in its infancy there were poets who wrote of the blossoms on the trees in the spring. They didn't write "blossom," however, but used the word "blow" and made it rhyme with snow and flow When they wished to sing of the beautiful mass of apple or hawthorn flowers they called it the "blowth." This word is found in the dictionaries, which assert that it is obselete, but it is very much alive in Rockingham county, N. H., and York county, Me. The orchardist thereabout speaks of a "full blowth" or "light blowth" on his trees in May and predicts a good or poor "set" of the fruit in consequence

"Orts" are supposed to be refuse of some kind, but in the valley where the Piscataqua river mingles with the sea "orts" is the name for "swill."—Exchange

Tricking the Bobby.

A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight, and just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon collared the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender.

"But," said the assistant as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose"—London Answers

Weatherwise Birds and Fish.

The seagull makes a splendid living barometer If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable Of all weatherwise fish the dolphin is the most remarkable. During a fierce gale or a storm at sea the mariner knows that the end of it is near if he can see a dolphin or a number of that fish sporting on the high sea waves

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the frog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in parts and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible —New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven, otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests Tea likewise deteriorates with age It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it.—New York World

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children Pure sugar is good for grown people Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets.—Christian Herald

The Age of Linen.

It is highly probable that the manufacture of linens is of greater antiquity than that of silk. Archaeologists generally admit that the mummy cloth of the most ancient dynasties was a variety of fine-t linen The Egyptian and Jewish priests wore it at all their ceremonies We find mention of fine linens all through the Old and New Testaments When the queen of Sheba visited Solomon she was habited in linen. In Revelation the angels are clothed in "pure and white linen" Genesis tells us that Pharaoh arrayed Joseph in vestures of fine linen. Silk is mentioned in the Bible only four times

The Mystic Seven.

A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters" The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom and he was compelled to return home

"Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?"

"I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure"—Philadelphia Times.

Money Panic.

"What was the worst money panic you ever saw?" asked one financier of another.

"The worst money panic I ever saw," was the reply, "was when a fifty cent piece rolled under the seat of a street car and seven different women claimed it."—Exchange.

BAPTISTS BEAT THE METHODISTS

Bottom Contenders Stick to Their Position Through Drubbing

SEVEN HITS TO FIVE

Erring in attempts to do just the right thing at the right time, together with their opponent's timely hitting and good base running, lost the game last night to the Methodists, bottom contenders for the pennant race. The Baptists thus captured another interesting game, by the score of 4 to 3.

It looked very much Methodist, thank you, until the fourth inning. They captured two scores in the second inning, when Heaton and Binns completed the circuit. The former singled stole second and went third on [illegible] Binns was safe on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on an error.

The Baptists scored one in the same inning, when Deitz got a walk, stole second, got third on an error and scored on a hit. On a three base hit and a single the Methodists scored in the fourth. The Baptist again scored, this time twice, H. Mason and Morris bringing in the runs. Two hits a couple of errors, a hit by pitcher, a stolen base and a passed ball were reasons.

In the sixth session H. Mason singled, stole second and completed the distance on a wild throw. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

Snyder, catcher for the Methodists was forced to get out of the game in the fourth, when he had a nail ripped from his finger. Dillon came from right field to substitute and Manager George Barnett went in right.

* * *

George Barnett won the plaudits of the crowd when he went to bat for the first time. Then to demonstrate that he had a right to all this popularity, he hit out a beautiful single. Afterwards, George made a grand stand catch in right that astounded the populace.

* * *

The Baptists had a new pitcher, Adams, in form. He is wee, but pitches good ball. Besides William got one of the nicest hits of the game.

* * *

Lambert Heaton landed on the ball for two daisy singles.

* * *

"Speedy" McKean seems to be about the chief bag pilferer in the league. And "Speedy" is a banker.

* * *

Both the Methodists and Baptists had rather patched up teams.

* * *

Tonight there promises to be a good struggle, when the First Presbyterians and Baptists meet.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of his first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out in the satisfaction of a [illegible] of the [illegible] strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what dead commerce was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vital qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

Very Sensitive.

"I don't know what I am going to do with that kid of mine. He's always getting into fights. I jerked him up for it the other day. 'What do you mean by fighting on the public streets like this?' I asked.

"'Well,' he said, 'Jimmy Montgomery said you were my father.'

"'Well, ain't I your father?'

"'I s'pose you are, but a feller don't want it thrown up to him right in front of a crowd'"—Boston Traveler.

Camping Out.
